Research Study Opportunity!

A local graduate student is looking for recently separated/divorced, moms that have a child ages 5-13 to take part in an online, anonymous study that will be published as part of her dissertation. The aim of this research is to examine the link between a recently separated mom’s stress and the quality parent-child relationship. This online survey will take you approximately 30-40 minutes online to complete 130 multiple choice questions about your stress and the relationship with your child. This can be completed at any time you have 30-40 minutes with Internet connection; however it must be completed all at one time.

Other than your e-mail address, you will be asked for no identifying information, not even your name! It will not be possible to know which mom completed which survey so your privacy is protected. You will only be contacted about this research 1 time with the study link and your e-mailed address will not be shared in anyway.

No need to drive or find child care! This study is completely voluntary and the findings could benefit future families experiencing a separation/divorce.

*If you are a mom to at least one child, ages 5-13

*Are recently separated/divorced (within 24 months)

*Live with your child at least 50% of the time

And

*Are not currently in a serious romantic relationship you could qualify to take part in this research project.

Please e-mail parentresearchstudy@gmail.com for the study link and password if you fit the criteria listed above and are willing to participate. If you know of another local mom that fits the criteria and might be interested, please feel free to share this information with her.
